

2014 Public Integrity Bureau Annual Report

PIB shall include in its annual report a summary of each misconduct complaint, including a description of the allegation, the final approved disposition, and any discipline imposed. PIB's annual report shall also include aggregate misconduct data showing the number of each type of complaint and the number and rate of sustained cases after final approval, and shall provide an analysis of this data that identifies trends and concerns and documents NOPD's response to the identified trends and concerns. The PIB and IPM should coordinate and confer with each other in collecting, analyzing, and reporting this data to avoid or minimize duplication of efforts or resources. [Consent Decree ¶426]

The Public Integrity Bureau (PIB), commanded by Assistant Superintendent Arlinda Westbrook, is responsible for the fair and consistent implementation of the disciplinary process, from the receipt of a complaint through its final resolution. The includes the assignment and processing of all disciplinary investigations, review of recommendations in all disciplinary investigations and hearings, maintenance of disciplinary records, and the coordination of specific investigations with outside agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigations and the Independent Police Monitor.

All bureaus and divisions are included in the disciplinary process. Although officers assigned to PIB investigate all allegations of criminal misconduct against both police officers and civilian employees, the investigation of violation of administrative regulations are shared with first-line supervisors. In order to hold first-line supervisors accountable and ensure their involvement in complaints against their subordinates, many administrative complaints are forwarded to division commanders through their bureau chiefs for investigation. These investigations are reviewed through that bureau's chain of command, then ultimately by PIB and Superintendent of Police Michael Harrison.

The purpose of this report is to summarize misconduct complaint data collected for the past year, analyze that data, and identify trends and concerns in the areas of misconduct and discipline. The report includes: the number of sustained, not sustained, exonerated and unfounded complaints; the number of officers who were subjects of repeated misconduct complaints; the number of officers arrested for on-duty and off-duty conduct; the number of criminal prosecutions of officers; and the number and nature of civil suits filed against New Orleans police officers for work-related conduct. The report describes steps NOPD has taken to correct problems and to build on successes.

Key definitions

Complaint—Any allegation of misconduct committed by any NOPD employee that is reported by any person, including any NOPD employee.

Exonerated—The outcome of a disciplinary investigation in which a preponderance of the evidence demonstrated that the alleged misconduct occurred but did not violate NOPD policies, procedures, or training.

Formal Disciplinary Investigation—Internal New Orleans Police Department investigation that may result in disciplinary action as set forth in Civil Service Rules.

Misconduct—Any action or inaction that violates any Departmental Rule, Policy, Procedure, Order, verbal or written instruction, or criminal law.

No Formal Investigation Merited (NFIM)—A complaint action in which the allegation, on its face, does not constitute a violation by an employee of any Departmental Rule, Policy, Procedure, verbal or written instruction, or criminal or civil law.

Not Sustained—The outcome of a disciplinary investigation in which a preponderance of the evidence demonstrates the alleged misconduct occurred.

Sustained—The outcome of a disciplinary investigation in which a preponderance of the evidence did not demonstrate that the alleged misconduct occurred.

Unfounded—The outcome of a disciplinary investigation in which a preponderance of the evidence demonstrates the alleged misconduct did not occur or did not involve the accused officer or employee.

Relevant Policies

Policy 1020, “Misconduct Complaints/Disciplinary Investigations,” currently governs the NOPD’s investigation of misconduct complaints. However, this policy has been revised and its replacement, Chapter 52.1.1, “Complaint Investigation,” is scheduled to be implemented in early 2015.

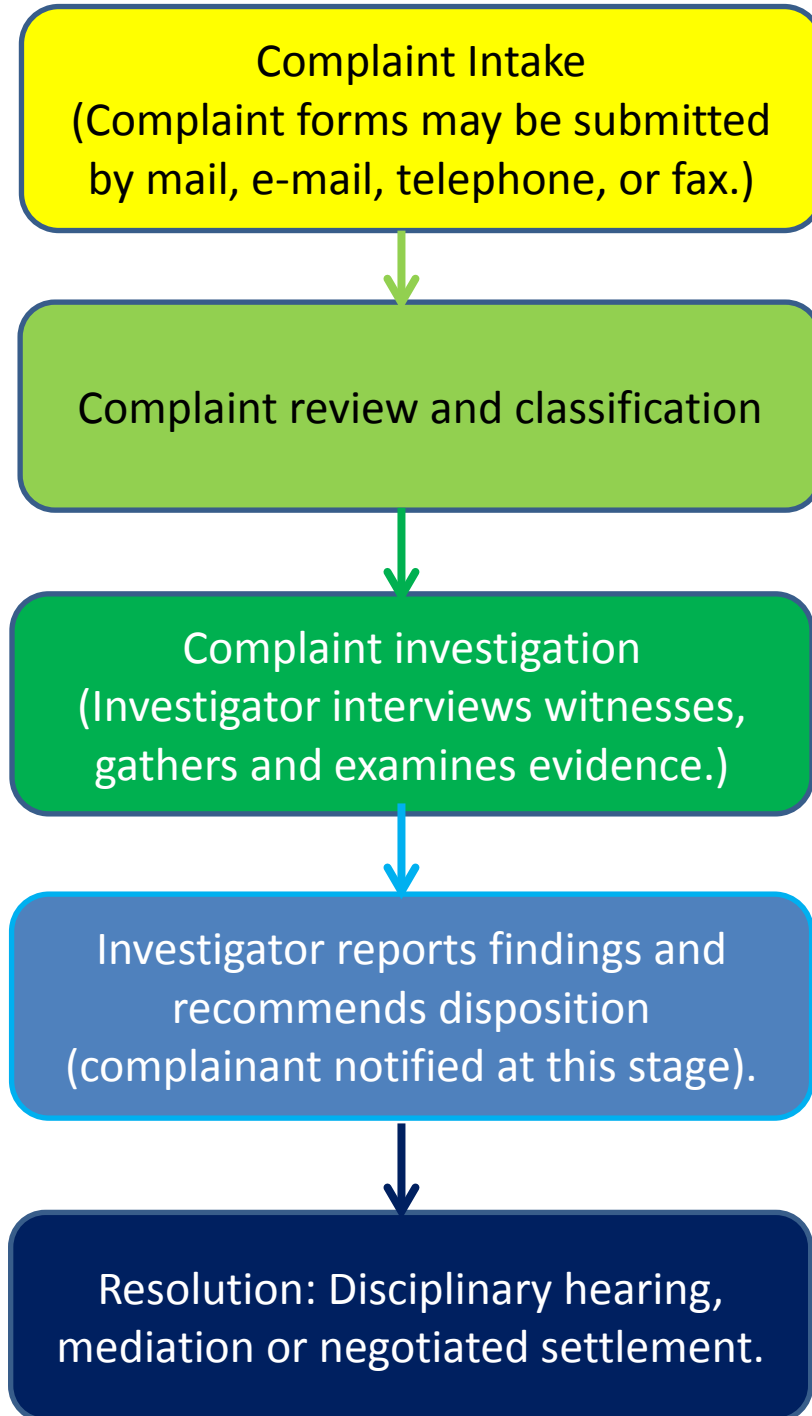

Policy 1021, “Disciplinary Hearings/Penalties” governs the procedure for conducting disciplinary hearings and determining appropriate penalties. It is currently under revision in accordance with the Consent Decree.

The NOPD adopted three new policies in 2014 that affect the disciplinary process: Policy 1023, “Negotiated Settlement Agreement (NSA) and Complaint Resolution,” which allows for resolution of misconduct complaints for minor violations reported by supervisors without a formal hearing; Policy 1025, “Community-Police Mediation,” which allows for mediation as an option in conflict resolution of citizen complaints; and Chapter 35.1.7, “Non-Disciplinary Employee Counseling for Minor Violations,” which allows for counseling or training as resolution of minor violations or infractions. Because all of these policies are newly implemented, this report does not include analysis of complaint data derived from mediation, non-disciplinary counseling or NSA resolution. Future annual reports will track these dispositions.

Note: The New Orleans Police Department is revising its policies in accordance with the Consent Decree. At the direction of the Department of Justice, that comprehensive revision entails the conversion of several policies to chapter format. For example, the-above referenced policies, No. 1023 and 1025, have been reformatted and promulgated as Chapters 24.1 and 24.2, respectively.

The Complaint Process

The following flow chart describes the misconduct complaint process:

When anyone files a complaint against a New Orleans police officer, the Public Integrity Bureau of the New Orleans Police Department conducts an investigation. Upon receiving a complaint, the Public Integrity Bureau reviews, classifies, and processes the complaint. An investigator may contact the complainant and obtain a recorded statement. The investigator will ask the complainant to provide as much detailed information as possible regarding the incident.

The investigator will contact all available witnesses, including police officers, examine all relevant evidence, and gather all information pertinent to each allegation. If for any reason there is a lengthy delay in the investigation, the complainant will be notified as to when he or she can expect to receive the results. After all allegations have been fully investigated, the Superintendent of Police will determine what action, if any, should be taken to resolve the complaint.

The investigation may result in several outcomes, depending on the final disposition of the complaint. If the disposition is exonerated, unfounded, or not sustained, no disciplinary action may be taken. In all cases, the person who made the complaint will be notified in writing of the investigation's findings.

When an allegation is sustained, a complainant may choose mediation instead of a formal disciplinary hearing. Alternatively, the matter may proceed to a disciplinary hearing at which time a penalty will be recommended. The Superintendent of Police ultimately determines what penalty is appropriate. The penalty may range from a reprimand to suspension, fine, demotion, or dismissal from the department.

If the complaint includes allegations of criminal wrongdoing, a criminal investigation may be conducted in addition to any administrative investigation. The District Attorney may then be consulted regarding the filing of criminal charges and the arrest of the offending employee.

Misconduct complaint findings¹

In 2014, the Public Integrity Bureau received 870 misconduct complaints, including 654 lodged by members of the public (75 percent) and 216 that were initiated by NOPD supervisors, i.e. officers who have the rank of sergeant or higher (25 percent). Of the rank-initiated complaints, 70 of them (32 percent) resulted in non-disciplinary counseling or training. The total number of complaints in 2014 is 12 percent lower than the total number of complaints in the previous year, 994. This decrease is not apparently related to access to the complaint process.

Origin of Complaints	2014
Citizen Initiated	654
Rank Initiated	216
Total	870

¹ All misconduct complaint data comes from the Public Integrity Bureau of the New Orleans Police Department and represents data from January 1, 2014 through December 31, 2014.

The following summaries describe all of the misconduct complaints lodged against New Orleans police officers and police department employees through the Public Integrity Bureau in 2014. The complaint process of the New Orleans Police Department is allegation-driven, and all allegations are taken seriously and investigated thoroughly. However, until a complaint is proven, allegations contained in the complaint have not been verified and should not be read as statements of fact.

Additionally, a “sustained” disposition does not necessarily indicate that the complaint’s allegations have been proven. Misconduct complaints often contain multiple allegations, and a “sustained” disposition reflects the fact that at least one allegation was proven to be true. In some cases, an investigator may discover additional allegations that are not contained in the original complaint; therefore, a case may be given a “sustained” disposition even when none of the complainant’s allegations are proven.

Finally, a complaint may be given a “sustained” disposition when an investigation is completed, but that disposition may change once the complaint is adjudicated during a disciplinary hearing. The disposition of a complaint is not considered final until after the disciplinary hearing is held and the Superintendent of Police has approved the disposition and discipline. Consequently, the disposition of cases for which the discipline is listed as “hearing pending” may ultimately be changed.

1. Control Number: 2014-0001-N

Complainant, via a letter to the Superintendent, wished to file criminal charges against his ex-wife for domestic battery and armed robbery. He provided three separate dates for the incidents, but advised that he had not reported these incidences to the police before because his ex-wife works for the City. He felt threatened by her employment there. An officer contacted complainant to explain that he would need to speak with a district patrol officer to have the reports documented. Information presented regarding the above did not include a complaint against an officer. However, upon talking to complainant, he advised of another incident he reported several days earlier that did contain a complaint. That is being handled under 2014-0011C. It appears that the complainant's ex-wife went to the district station and had an officer contact the complainant regarding a civil issue between the two.

Complainant identified himself as a former officer of NOPD. Complainant stated he and an acquaintance were driving to the complainant's home, when they were pulled over by officers. The complainant was the driver of the vehicle. Complainant stated he was in possession of his privately owned firearm. The firearm was located in the center console of the vehicle, on the front passenger side. The complainant indicated when a female officer approached the passenger side of the vehicle and illuminated her flashlight; the female officer observed the firearm in the car. The gun was safely removed from the vehicle. While the complainant suspected that the officers were checking their names via a database, the complainant asked his acquaintance if his acquaintance had any outstanding warrants. The complainant's acquaintance acknowledged that he had an outstanding warrant and was a convicted felon. The complainant's acquaintance was subsequently arrested and the firearm was confiscated and placed in the custody of the Central Evidence & Property Division. While still on the scene, another officer arrived at the location. The complainant challenged the officer by telling the officer that he (the complainant) was a former NOPD Task Force Officer. The complainant said the officers had made a bad arrest by arresting his acquaintance and confiscating the complainant's gun. The officer explained departmental policy & arrest procedures and refuted the complainant's request to have the gun returned. The complainant became upset because he did not want his gun confiscated. It should be noted the complainant could not provide any documentation proving he was the owner of the firearm.
